Signal Sarvice report: River 31 feet 2 inches—stationary yesterday. The rivers are generally declining at all points, excepting insignificant rises at Pittsburg, Chattanooga and Omaha.

THE largest tows of coal that ever went down the Mississ ppi river were the following: J. B. Williams, 780,000 bushels; John A. Wood, 676,000 bushels; W. W. O'Neil, 654,000 bushels. Total by the three boats, 2,031,000 bushels. Sr. Louis river men are uneasy about th

St. Louis liver men are uneasy about the June rise. Perhaps they are right, at least as the prospect of damage applies to the Miscouri and the vicinity of St. Louis, but if it don't hurry along down the present high water may be gone down to a sufficient stage o receive all that's said to be coming, with out doing any material damage below. THE following paragraph from the Louises in the O.-Line combination at Cincinnaij have been adjusted: "Between 'music' and 'monkeying,' things have been lively in river circles at Porkopolis. Now the monkey's dead, the organ's busted, and the 'Wild Bill' and 'Morgan Rattler' have shaken hands over the 'bloody chasm.' Bless de lam'!' V. K. STEVENSON claims to own the whar Chattanoogs, but was enjoined from col contrained, but was enjoyed from con-acting wharfage by the city authorities. Last fuesday he field a bill of injunction against he city's interference, and setting furth his claims to the wharf He alleges in the bill that he has owned the wharf since May 10, 1848; that Market, Broad and Chestnut streets never extended to the water's edge; that he has held possession of the property for many years and at various times expended he has collected wharfage for years and pai taxes. May 18, 1883, the mayor and alder men passed an ordinance making it a misde-meanor to collect wharfage, and declaring that the streets extended to the water's edge Since then, through fear of violating a law the collection of wharlage has ceased. The streets were never condemned through the perty, and the attempt by the city to take tuon of the State, of the United States and Railreads and the River. New Orleans Times-Democrat: "The report of the committee appointed to prepare an address to the railroads not autagonizing address to the railroads not autagonizing river improvement shows some of the many reasons why they should, as the River Imsenstance to secure a large appropriation for the river. The old idea that the two interests, the river and the railroads, are opposed to each other, and should, there or be hostile, is absurd, and without the sligh-est foundation. To the Southern and Wes should be regarded in the light of a connecting line. The Micouri Pacific and dozen other companies bring grain to 8 Companies bring grain to St. Louis, to be sent thence by barges to New Orleans; and much of this grain is again distributed from here through the South by the Louisville and Nashville and Illinois Central. A dozen lines, therefore, secure a increase in business by this development of the river route. It is doubted by none, we believe, that the improvement of the lower Mississippi and the construction of the jeties have been of immense benefit to the Southwestern railroads. They they can ship the products they bring here, and receive in return the productions of Latin America. The improvement of the It will form a chesp truck line, with which all the railroads running latitudinally to it will connect, and it will bring all these companies an increase of business. All the lines west of the Mississippi would be benefited and many east of it, and the only ones that would suffer would be the great Esseen truck lines, like the New York Central, Erie, Pennsylvania Central and Baltimore and Dato. We see no reason, therefore, why the roads cannot, is the committee suggest their great assistance to the present ovement to a cure an improvement of the Mississippi. They are equally interested with the n ire v lley in it. Wh t-ver im reas site population and production-as be improvement of the river, the increase of its navigation and the protection of its cot ton lance from overflow, would undoubted! accomplish all this -would cirtainly benefithe roads situated in it and increase their RIVER AND WEATHER.
